In Latin America, there were positive developments in a number of countries:

- The newly elected civilian government of Argentina has indicted several former military leaders on criminal charges in connection with the thousands of "disappearances" which occurred while they were in power. And several Montonero leaders have returned to the country professing to have abandoned terrorist tactics in favor of peaceful political activity, which would be good news only if they mean it.

Argentina: Montonero Leader Arrested. Exiled Montonero leaders Ricardo Obregon Cano and Oscar Bidegain returned to Argentina on 20 December to announce the organization's formal dissolution. Obregon Cano was immediately arrested. Earlier this month, five exiled Montonero leaders, including Obregon Cano and Bidegain, published an open letter to President Alfonsin announcing they would return to Argentina to pursue their political objectives through peaceful means.
